

THE FUTURE OF PHILANTHROPY
HAWAI'I COMMUNITY FOUNDATION • 2017 ANNUAL REPORT

For 100 years, we have amplified the power of giving in Hawai'i.

A group of five children are running up a lush green grassy hill. The children are spaced out along the slope, moving from the bottom left towards the top right. The sky above is a vibrant blue with scattered white clouds. The text "So ... what's next?" is centered in the upper middle part of the image, overlaid on the sky and the hill.

So ... what's next?

Our focus is on creating long-term, large-scale

... across these six sectors, covering a broad mosaic of community issues.

Embarking on our next century

Hawai'i Community Foundation's yearlong centennial celebration was more than a recognition of our 100 years of community service. We hoped to light a spark that would ignite the power of philanthropy for future generations in Hawai'i.

As we embark on our next century, this community is facing a series of challenges that are more complex than ever before. They exist within a larger system and have to be dealt with as interdependent elements that link and interact. That requires us to shift our focus from solving separate problems to creating social change.

The goal — which is to improve our community as a whole and for the long run — calls on Hawai'i Community Foundation to become a catalyst for this change.

We're tasked with understanding how the issues are interconnected, reaching out to others in the community, and arriving at collaborative solutions that will stick.

Already underway at HCF are initiatives in public education, homelessness, fresh water security, and government transformation. We've been effective as a convener because of the knowledge we share and the trust we've earned among leaders in nonprofit, community, business, and government sectors, whose collaboration is key to success.

We've learned that success, when it comes to large-scale social change, can often take years. The issues, the key players, and the resources all need to be "ripe," and the process needs to be carried out with commitment, collaboration, and focus.

Our promise is to utilize all of the knowledge, the leadership, and the relationships we've built over a century of experience to deliver even greater impact for the next century.

We believe our investment is worthy of its long-term, high-impact reward:

a better Hawai'i for all and for always

Helping All Students Succeed

Middle School can be tough — peer pressure, academic stress, drugs, and distractions. Sadly, thousands of young students in Hawai'i are struggling through sixth, seventh, and eighth grades; their poor attendance, behavior, and course work all signal a greater likelihood that they will drop out during high school.

In 2013, the Hawai'i Community Foundation brought together 15 funders to launch "Connecting for Success" at 10 middle schools. It's a groundbreaking program that helps schools use real-time data to keep track of middle school students who are at risk of dropping out and develop programs that help those students reconnect to school in a way that can change the trajectory of their lives.

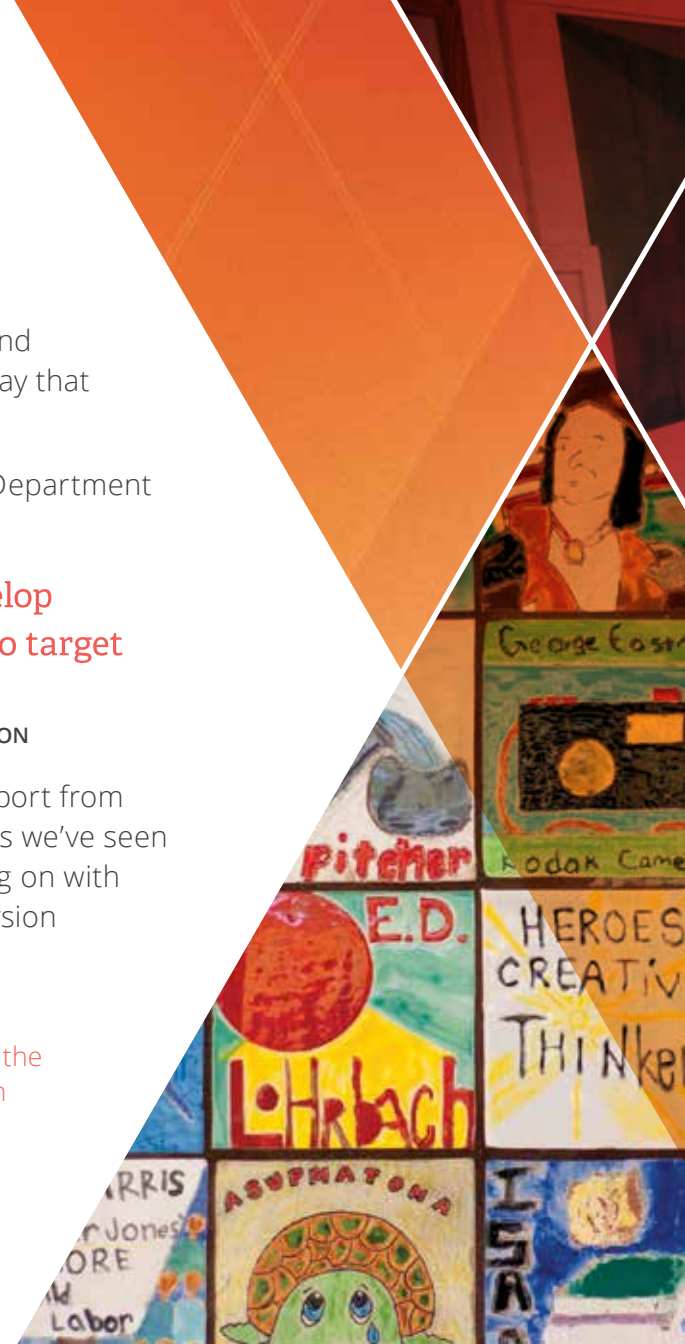

Key to the program's effectiveness is its use of data, starting with the Department of Education's Hawai'i Early Warning System.

"An integral part of the initiative was helping teachers develop the ability to track the right data and helping teams use it to target interventions for students who needed them most."

— KAREN LEE, FORMER EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR, HAWAII P20 PARTNERSHIPS FOR EDUCATION

The impact thus far for over 2,000 students who are getting extra support from school and community mentors has been transformative. "The changes we've seen in our students come not from guessing but from knowing what's going on with them," said Amy Kendziorski, Principal of Waimea Middle Public Conversion Charter School. "The kids are better off, and so is the school." 🌸

Whether shooting hoops or shooting the breeze together, adolescent boys get the chance to interact with committed, conscientious men like Steve Evans through the Boys to Men Mentoring Hawai'i program at Waimea Middle School. ▶

“The value of a group of funders that can align behind one goal and commit to a multi-year effort multiplies the impact we can have.”

Securing Hawai'i's Fresh Water Future

Fresh water is Hawai'i's single most important natural resource, but as the climate in our islands becomes more volatile and generally drier, our supply is increasingly threatened. Given that Hawai'i's economic and environmental survival is based on the availability of fresh water, we knew it was time to act.

The Hawai'i Community Foundation created the Wai Maoli: Hawai'i Fresh Water Initiative in 2013 and invited knowledgeable stakeholders from multiple sides of the issue to convene as a blue-ribbon Fresh Water Council. "We worked for over a year to come up with specific policy changes and strategies, and plan to keep working together to get them implemented," said council member Dennis Teranishi, President/CEO of Pacific International Center for High Technology Research.

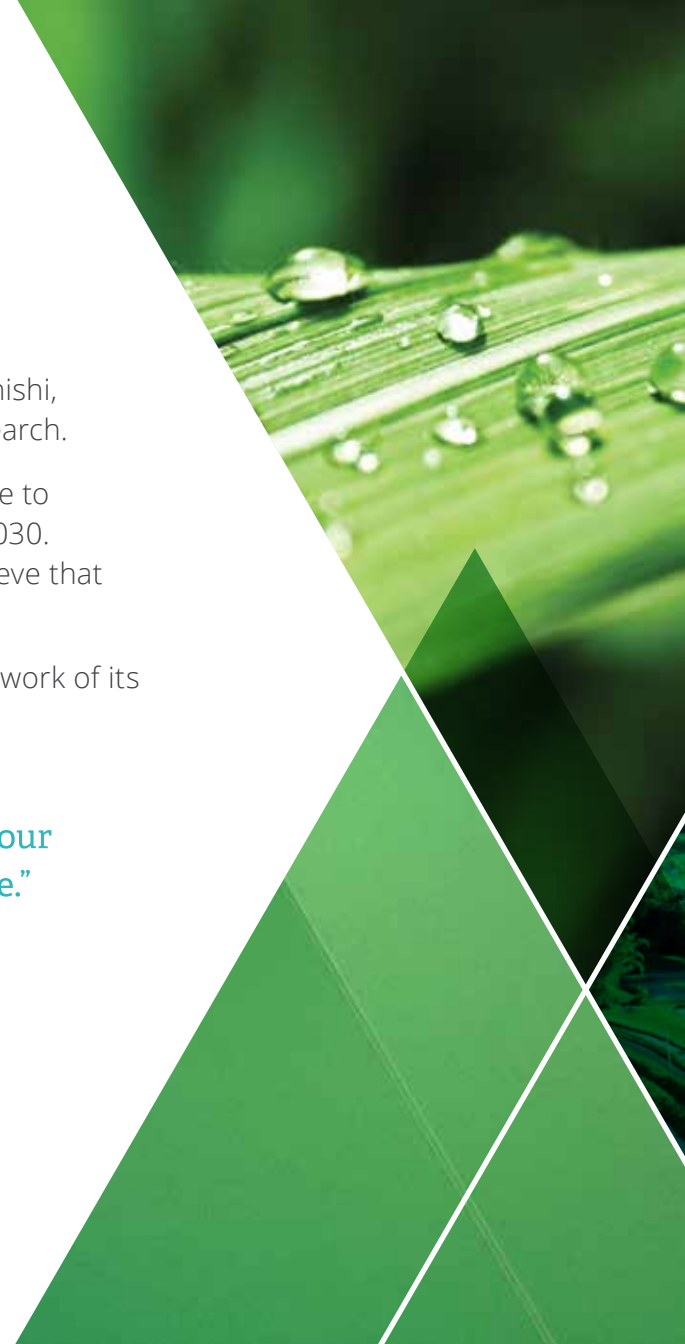

The resulting Blueprint for Action centers around the council's mandate to create 100 million gallons a day of additional, reliable, fresh water by 2030. The 25-member coalition identified three aggressive strategies to achieve that goal — conserve, recharge, reuse — with clear targets for each.

Support for convening the Fresh Water Council and for the pioneering work of its members came from a collaborative of 11 funding partners.

"Our decision to support this initiative stemmed from our foundation's commitment to securing Hawai'i's future and our belief that a shared agenda for action is the way to get there."

— FUNDING PARTNER BETO BEDOLFE,
EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR OF CALIFORNIA-BASED MARISLA FOUNDATION 🌿

Diminishing fresh water supplies in Hawai'i, along with projections for a drier, hotter future, have consequences for the economic and environmental sustainability of our island home. ►

The grant we received from HCF, along with federal funds, were crucial to enabling the Commission to establish its water audit program and provide three years of funding to assist the counties and other water utilities to audit their systems for water losses.

— Jeff Pearson, Deputy Director, Commission on Water Resource Management

Governor Ige, legislators, Fresh Water Council members, HCF staff, and youth from Hawai'i Nature Center's summer program attended the 2016 fresh water bill signing. ►

As an island people, the quantity and quality of available fresh water in Hawai'i directly impacts our health, economy, food production, ecology, native cultural practices, and quality of life. ▲

RECHARGE

Capture more rainwater in our aquifers by expanding and actively protecting watershed areas while improving our storm water retention

REUSE
30+ million gallons

Housing Homeless Families Faster

As the rate of homelessness rises in Hawai'i, many of those without a permanent place to live are families with children (42%). The Hawai'i Community Foundation recognized the need to take immediate action and spearheaded an innovative, three-year program in 2014 called HousingASAP.

Hawai'i Community Foundation knew that if shelter providers worked together, instead of independently, results for homeless people would be better, and the entire community would benefit. To that end, we brought together a group of 14 funders (including HCF) who pooled their resources toward a common goal: place more families into permanent housing faster and help them stay there.

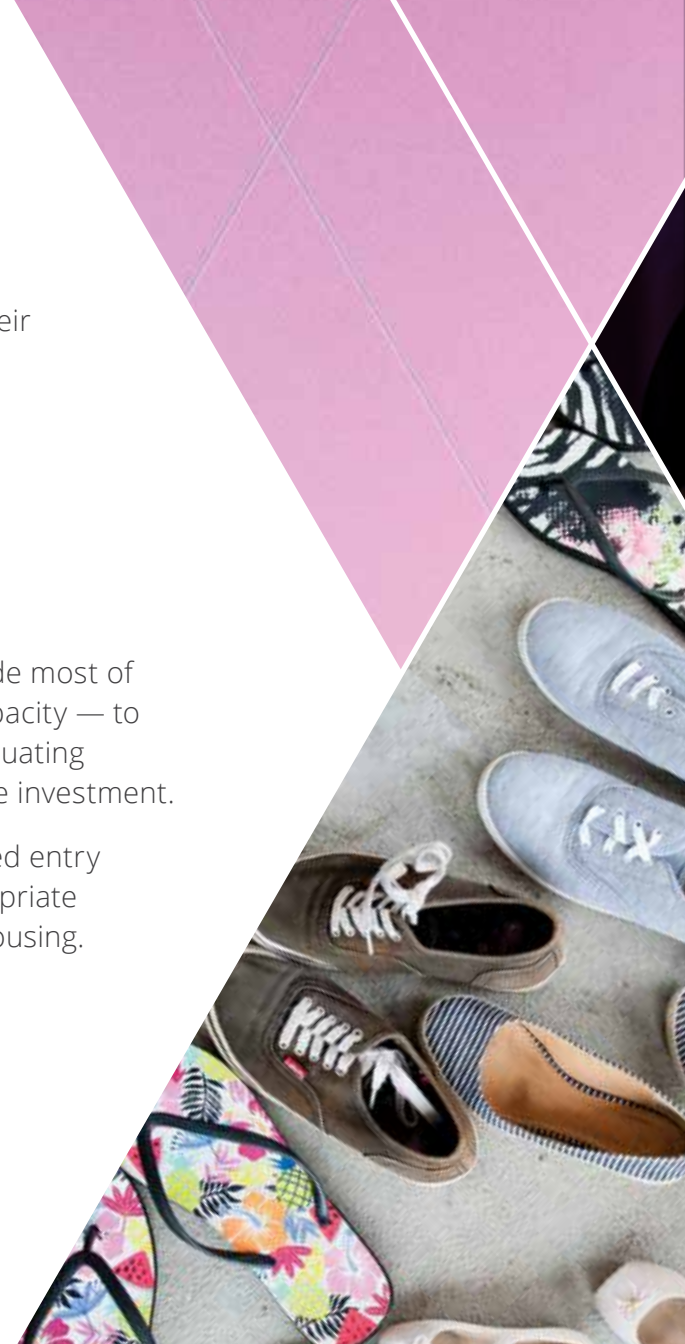

“When funders and providers are brought together to tackle pressing needs, people are helped more rapidly and better solutions are developed.”

— FUNDING PARTNER ANN BOUSLOG, FUND ADVISOR, COMMUNITY HOUSING FUND

The eight organizations that make up the HousingASAP network provide most of the shelter beds available for families in Hawai'i, so increasing their capacity — to incorporate Housing First practices, to use data for improving and evaluating effectiveness, and to implement policy and systems change — is a wise investment.

One of the network's most important accomplishments is a coordinated entry system that allows a homeless family to be referred to the most appropriate service provider in order to quickly get them placed into permanent housing. When families have homes, their futures become brighter. 🌈

A safe, secure, and sanitary place to live helps keep families stable and connected with each other, and can even improve the educational outcomes for children. ►

“By moving in the same direction and using data to guide us, members of the HousingASAP network are improving the long-term outlook for vulnerable families in Hawai‘i.”

— Maude Cumming, Executive Director, Family Life Center

Access to affordable housing increases the well-being and self-sufficiency of families like the Lee 'ohana in Kapolei. ▲

Creating a Healthier Hawai'i

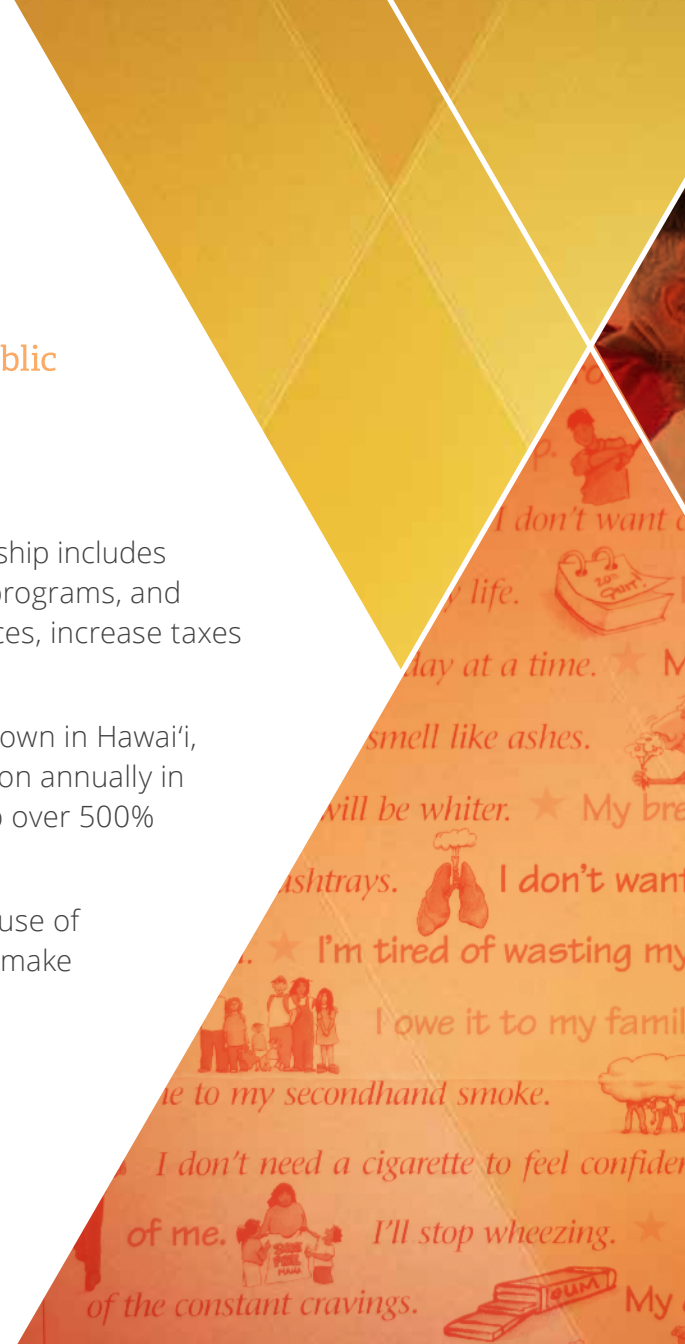

When the state received a portion of the class action master settlement with the tobacco industry 16 years ago, Hawai'i Community Foundation formed a partnership to reduce tobacco-related diseases and deaths in Hawai'i and start to improve people's health.

“The Trust Fund was used to develop a comprehensive program that includes policies, prevention, and cessation interventions. And results are yielding improvements in public health and saving lives.”

The multifaceted program that's come out of this public/private partnership includes the Hawai'i Tobacco Quitline, smoking cessation and youth prevention programs, and advocacy that helped to pass legislation to create smoke-free workplaces, increase taxes on tobacco products, and address secondhand smoke.

Up against a tobacco industry that spends relentlessly to increase the use of nicotine, our steadfast work on behalf of the Trust Fund has helped to make Hawai'i's smoking rate (14.1%) one of the lowest in the nation. 🌈

Behind every gift of generosity is a donor's passion and reason for giving back to the community. The act of helping others is one of life's most rewarding and meaningful experiences.

The following individuals, organizations, foundations, and trusts made contributions to the Hawai'i Community Foundation valued at $1,000 or more in 2016. We also acknowledge the gifts of those donors who have requested to remain anonymous.

Investment manager performance and strategies are reviewed by HCF's Investment Committee, comprised of directors who are knowledgeable in investment and financial matters, with the assistance of an independent investment monitor and HCF staff.

2016 VOLUNTEER ADVISORY COMMITTEES

Some funds at the Hawai'i Community Foundation have advisory committees made up of thoughtful community leaders who provide their expertise to support the Board of Governors with grantmaking.

"Individually, many people may want to give but may feel their contributions are too small to make great impact in the community. The East Hawai'i Fund at HCF allows people to join their dollars with others so that grants for the community are more meaningful and can make a bigger difference."
